Meier . Germany

The company starts in 1948 as Meier, manufacturer and seller of rocking horses. A next step of development follows in the seventies when the cooperation between the art designer Hanns-Peter Krafft and the Meier company is created. Down to the present day the company produces - next to the traditional rocking horse in plush and real skin - an ever enlarging range of handicraft objects and high-end articles designed by Hanns-Peter Krafft, with the sheep as an outstanding top-seller.

Meier . Germany (1)

The family business was founded in 1948. At first the firm specialised exclusively in traditional rocking horses. Being closely connected with the region (Zabergäu) and the people living there has been essential for the small, medium-sized company known as "Gäules-Meier" which eventually chose to be called "Meier . Germany". In only a few years it developed into an enterprise still well-known at the Nuremberg Toy Fair.

Also today's classic the life-size sheep stands in a close line with the original rocking horse as far as the construction and the choice of material is concerned: mastery of tailoring and carpentry, refined skills in the processing of wood, jute, fur, felt, leather and modern substantial materials.
